Swanirbhar Nari:

- In its endeavour to empower the indigenous weavers of the state and to provide financial support to the weavers families, the Government of Assam is implementing a flagship Scheme "SWANIRBHAR NAARI" through the Directorate of Handloom & Textiles, Assam.
- The scheme ensures direct procurement from weavers without the involvement of middlemen, thereby providing them fair market access and improved remuneration for their craftsmanship.
- The scheme will be implemented with the help of ARTFED and AGMC under the administrative control of the Director, Handloom Textiles, Assam

Withdrawal of notification on Garbhanga sanctuary worries environment activists

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, Nov 30: Voicing grave concern over the recent withdrawal of the notification on the Garbhanga Wildlife Sanctuary by the State Government, conservation NGO Early Birds on Thursday said that the regressive step has shocked everyone and that such a development had never taken place in the State.

"Instead of declaring more pristine areas as Protected Areas (i.e., wildlife sanctuary and national park) in the State, the State Government has adopted a regressive step and set an extremely disturbing precedent, which will create more such demands in the future," Early Birds president Moly Baruah said.

Garbhanga reserve forest, Rani RF, Jorasal RF and Kowasing RF – together with Nongkhylem Wildlife sanctuary in neighbouring Meghalaya – provided ample opportunity to bring the entire trans-border landscape under a strong legal protection mechanism and conserve the pristine forest area perpetually.

For Guwahati city too, such a step would have done a world of good in terms of maintaining the city's ecological health besides regulated tourism activities like trekking, birding, etc.

"The stretch from the Basistha Temple through Garbhanga RF offers a pristine 30-km trekking route for nature lovers including bird lovers. The local people living inside Garbhanga can also become active stakeholders in conservation by acting as guides, among other activities," Baruah said.

There are only 12 villages inside Garbhanga with a combined population of around 14,000, and many of them are already involved in guiding activities for trekkers and birders. Many foreign tourists also visit the area for bird watching.

"More than 300 species of birds have been identified inside this pristine area and further documentation can yield the presence of more species. Other wildlife found in these jungles are leopard, jackal, hoollock gibbon, slow loris, wild boar, sambar, etc. Over 350 species of butterflies have also been identified inside Garbhanga RF till date. All these will continue to thrive only if Garbhanga is elevated to a wildlife sanctuary," Baruah said.

Early Birds had submitted a memorandum to Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on July 19, 2021 to declare Garbhanga as a wildlife sanctuary and it was largely on the basis of this representation that Garbhanga was declared as a proposed wildlife sanctuary in March 2021, Baruah said.

Pointing out that anthropological, commercial and industrial pressures were the rise near Garbhanga, Baruah said that the decision of the Government to cancel the wildlife sanctuary notification would bleed Garbhanga to death.

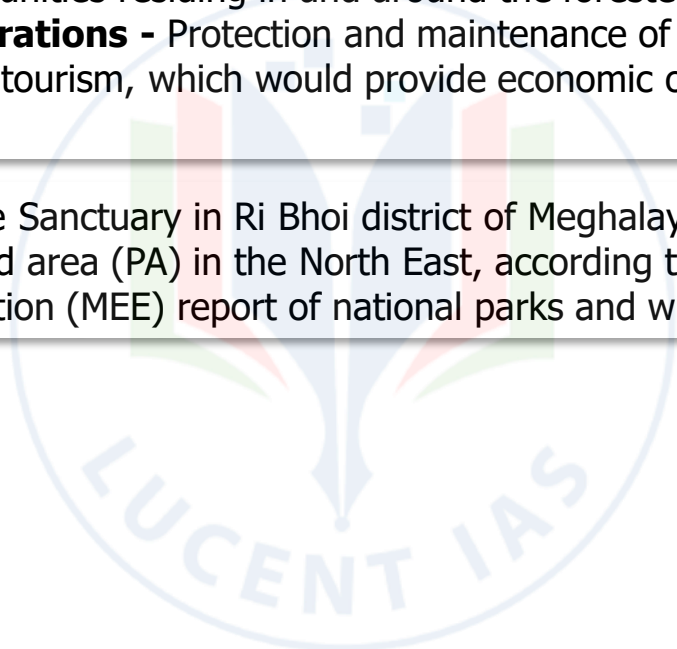

"It is a most regressive step by the Government and it should immediately elevate Garbhanga – among a few pristine stretches of forests close to the city – to a wildlife sanctuary before it is too late," he added.

- Garbhanga Wildlife Sanctuary (formerly Garbhanga and Rani Reserve Forest) is a wildlife sanctuary on the southwestern side of Guwahati City, bordering the state of Meghalaya, India.
- The forested area is the key urban wildlife site and catchment area near Guwahati City.
- The Garbhanga Wildlife Sanctuary is surrounded by Guwahati City and Dipor Bill in the South, the Meghalayan ranges on the east and north, and Rani Range on the west.
- In earlier days, various NGOs and researchers witnessed rare animals such as serow, clouded leopard, and bison and wanted to study Garbhanga.

- Demanding the upgrading of Garbhanga-Rani Reserved Forests into a wildlife sanctuary for its better protection and care.
 - Hydrological considerations - Protection of the watershed areas of Guwahati city and its adjacent areas would regulate water flow, maintain water quality and nutrient cycles, and prevent soil erosion and sedimentation.
 - Genetic and species considerations - Protection of wild gene pools of flora and diverse avian, mammalian, reptilian, and other fauna.
 - Ethnobotanical considerations - Protection of medicinal plants traditionally used by tribal communities residing in and around the forested areas.
 - Economic considerations - Protection and maintenance of the areas with high scenic value for eco-tourism, which would provide economic opportunity to ethnic tribal inhabitants.

- Me-dam-me-phi is termed as festival of unity rather than worship to facilitate its extensive celebrations. They observe it in different ways Ban-phi and Fralung.
- Hubachani Puja is another important ritual observed by some Ahom families in every two or three years. According to some scholars of Upper Assam it was not the traditional form and call it another form of Durga puja.
- Ceremonies of Rik khvan, Deo ban, Ap-tang, the relating of Buranji, presentation of Hengdan, exchange of gold rings, lime box and knife, oblation to the five deities are definitely Tai-Ahom

Arunachal Pradesh Logistics Policy

The Arunachal Pradesh Cabinet's approval of the formulation of the Arunachal Pradesh Logistics Policy in alignment with the PM Gati Shakti Framework is seen as an effort to attracting major logistics players to the state. The policy aims at "Augmenting integrated, multi-modal, logistics ecosystem for a developed Arunachal Pradesh 2047". Implementation of the policy should ensure that development of logistics is sustainable in the fragile ecology of the state, which is also a key asset of the state. Accelerated development of road connectivity in the border state has unlocked new business opportunities for the people of the state. The Logistics Ease Across Different States (LEADS) 2022 report identified key constraints in the development of logistics in the northeast region. These are: The geographical positioning, terrain, resource base and economic activity at large act as natural deterrents to development of a robust logistics infrastructure and its effective management. Limited access points, mostly via the (inefficient) ecosystems in West Bengal and centred primarily around Assam within the NER, only increase time and cost of cargo movement to/from the region.
